5. Would you like to see any tests added/deleted/modified?
6. Would any other media or format be better than an audio CD for your use?
7. Are you interested in getting additional releases of this same “Interoperability Clean ALE Tone Compact Disc”?
8. Would you be interested in a set of CDs that have the tones degraded by using a digital model of the Watterson Channel Simulator? If so, what would your application be?
9. The software program ALECALL for generating your own calls with a sound card is included on the floppy disk. Will this be a useful tool? How?
10. This space (and separate page) for any additional comments/evaluation.

15. ABSTRACT (A 200-word or less factual summary of most significant information. If document includes a significant bibliography or literature survey, mention it here.) A method of high frequency (HF) radio interoperability testing in accordance with Federal Standards 1045A and 1046/1 is now available on a compact disc (CD) created by engineers at the National Telecommunications and Information Administration, Institute for Telecommunication Sciences. This report describes both the use of the CD and the software that created the sound files recorded on the CD. The sound files, which can be recreated by the program on a personal computer and played through a PC sound card, were recorded on a compact disc and packaged with the executable software for distribution to the public. The use of the CD for interoperability testing is explained, and tools are provided to simplify testing, such as data log sheets and additional utility software.
